

Ezekiel 39:26 After that they have borne their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid.

A close-up photograph of a bromeliad plant, likely a species of Tillandsia. The image shows several long, narrow, and slightly curved leaves with distinct serrated edges. The color of the leaves is a vibrant pinkish-red, with some darker red or purple hues near the base. The background is blurred, making the sharp, pointed leaves stand out.