

A close-up photograph of a large cluster of pink hydrangea flowers. The petals are a vibrant pink color with some lighter, almost white, variegation. The flowers are densely packed, creating a textured appearance. In the background, there is a soft-focus green foliage, likely ferns or similar leafy plants, which provides a natural and serene setting for the text.

John 04:29 Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?